'Femi' has program for safer winter roads

his "Precision De-Icing Technique" program.

"We just did it on our own," Omitaomu, an Oak Ridge National Laboratory research scientist, said of his desire to inquire about the slope and amount of sunlight absorbed for each 50-meter stretch of a given Town street or road.

The bottom line is creating a more efficient way snow and ice treatments, such as salt, are spread — both for easier and quicker traffic passage and, more importantly, to decrease accidents. "This is going to save money, and most importantly it's going to save lives," he said.

"The system has been tested under laboratory settings," Omitaomu added. "The next step is to put the control system on a snow truck for field testing before we can say it is ready for prime time."

When ready, this ORNL program would be available, free of charge, to any municipality looking to improve its snow and ice prevention and removal, he said. "It started with the snow event we had in Knoxville a couple of years ago, where that

$136k tax fee again fought

editor@farragutpress.com

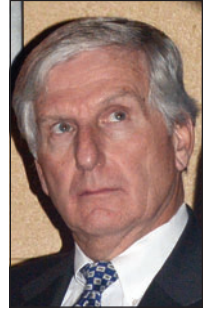

One way to offset Town of Farragut's reduced amount of Hall Income Tax revenue, according to Knox County Commissioner John Schoonmaker, is getting relief from the Sales Tax Administration Fee.

"That's what the [state] Department of Revenue charges the City of Knoxville, Knox County and the Town of Farragut to get their sales tax returned to them," Schoonmaker, representing 5th District that includes Farragut and Concord, said during an annual meeting of local and state leaders. "Rep. [Jason] Zachary introduced a bill last year [to eliminate the fee] but it was exclusively for Knox County. That didn't go forward."

Schoonmaker and Zachary, [R-District 14 including Farragut and Concord], attended the annual meeting of Commissioners, Knox County Board of Education representatives and local state elected officials at Dead End BBQ, Sutherland Avenue, in the morning and early afternoon Thursday, Dec. 7.

"Now we're going to go statewide with it and make it for all the counties and municipalities," Schoonmaker said.

To abolish the administrative fee "is the right thing to do," he added. "The City of Knoxville loses $1.7 million [annually]

Santa letters HQ 'staffed' by biz, Town, FHS

mhollenhead@farragutpress.com

Because his North Pole elves are working fast and furiously toward the Christmas Eve deadline, Santa has personally selected a very special group of surrogates to help him answer children's letters this holiday season.

Volunteers from CH Interiors & Gifts, along with Town of Farragut staff and several Farragut High School students, have been responding to letters dropped off at the new Santa's Mailbox in Founder's Park at Campbell Station.

The mailbox was unveiled during the Nov. 27 Lighting of the Park ceremony, and organizers determined early on they could respond to Santa's personal request for assistance.

"[CH Interiors] was the guiding force [for the project]," said Sue Stuhl, Parks & Leisure Services director who is overseeing the Town's participation.

Jesse Boling, owner of the business, said the Town offered to help — and the project was a go.

He said the collaboration has been a good one, and has ensured letters are being answered as quickly as possible.

A representative from the Town's Public Works Department collects the letters daily, decked out in an Elf hat and carrying one of Santa's official Christmas sacks.

The letters are delivered to Town Hall, and volunteers go to work, responding to each one that has included a return address.

"Santa can't answer letters that don't have a return address," said Stuhl, who estimated the Town received 75 to 80 letters the first week, while Boling estimated his store had received around 100 during that same time frame.

That number is increasing quickly, with upward of 25 to 50 letters being collected daily.

For all letters to be received in a timely actually happened back-to-back," Omिताomu said. "Schools were out for about two weeks.

"That was what prompted our motivation ...," he added. "We then did a quick study and we found that usually the way the icy roads are cleared is based on a very old idea where they use traffic volume."

Defining the biggest priority roads for first treatment as level 1 roads, based on traffic volume, Omिताomu said, "Because [road crews] start with level 1 roads, they don't usually get to de-ice level 2 and level 3 [less priority] roads. And because of that people normally were not able to get out of their neighborhoods to get on the Interstate.

"One of the issues is a resource allocation issue because they don't have a sufficient budget to buy road salt to salt everywhere," he added, "So they have to prioritize where they need to apply brine or salt.

"I've noticed that in the Town of Farragut as well. The major roads are usually treated first, but the neighborhoods are not treated, either because they don't have enough resources or because they run out of resources."

However, Town administrator David Smoak said, "We've got a little over 200 tons of salt in our bins ready to go. We can handle several weather events before we would need to go and get additional supplies."

Their snow removal fleet is two dump trucks with plows, and two Ford F-250 pickup trucks with spreaders, Smoak said.

About any possible changes, Smoak said, "The Town strives to maintain an efficient and effective snow removal strategy based on the many variables that go into each winter weather event, and would welcome the opportunity to discuss how to enhance this service to our community with Dr. Omिताomu."

"Now that the story is out, we are looking for the appropriate contact names so that we can shoot them some of these results and get their comment," Omिताomu said.

Board of Mayor and Aldermen is scheduled to vote on releasing the Town's "Snow Removal Schedule" for the 2017-18 winter season during its meeting starting at 7 p.m., tonight, Thursday, Dec. 14.

While Omिताomu was not critical of Public Works personnel, Smoak specifically praised the Town's Public Works crew, led by long-time director Bud McKelvey. "Bud and his guys over at Public Works do a great job of keeping our roads clear during snow events," Smoak said.

Having contacted City of Knoxville, Omिताomu said, "They actually provided some information to validate some of our results. ... We discovered that some of the trouble spots that they have identified over the years actually correlate with ... our model."

Chad Weth, Public Service director for City of Knoxville, said, "There is not a plan currently to implement this system. While it is very interesting and we do plan on looking at the results, there are many steps that would need to be made for implementation.

"Currently our systems are all gravity-fed and when the chute is open, salt is applied evenly on every stretch of roadway. This system would help us define areas that need more/less salt or no salt at all."

About his model, Omिताomu said, "We had to develop a method to classify road segments, every 50 meters, whether it should be treated or not treated. To do that we have to account for whether that segment is blocked from sunlight by trees or a structure, and whether it is a sloped road or a flat road.

"One formulation calculates the amount of solar radiation on a road segment while accounting for possible cloud cover. We used historical cloud cover profile for this area to determine a range," he added.

"The other formulation is based on the thermodynamics of snow-melt, which accounts for several parameters including days since last snowfall, albedo of the snow, wind speed, air temperature, freezing temperature, dewpoint temperature and rainfall."

With all data evaluated, Omिताomu said, "Once we come up with that we can easily integrate that information into GPS, so that we can then put that into snow trucks. When the snow trucks are going on the roads, using the GPS location, the truck automatically and intelligently determines whether that segment should be salted or not."

As for contacting Tennessee Department of Transportation about the project, he said, "We are yet to contact TDOT. We plan to do that after the holidays."

Omitaomu and his project team "of about seven" includes Farragut residents Daniel Koch, a research scientist, and Budhendra Bhaduri, a corporate fellow.

• There seems to be a growing number of pet owners who are taking advantage of the law permitting service animals in stores. I am not speaking about any person who has a service animal, as they perform a valuable service for their owners. In the past few weeks, I have seen a monkey in a food store and a puppy that peed in another store that sells food. I spoke to a clerk in still another store who told a story of a dog that defecated in their store. If your pet is not a service animal, please keep them out of retail stores and especially stores that sell food. If you crave other persons compliments on your pet, I suggest the Pet Safe park.

pect walked around the inside of his residence for a few minutes and then exited, the complainant added. She then went back to the front of the residence where video surveillance captured the suspect attempting to open the car door of victim No. 2. Suspect went back around to the rear of the residence before leaving in the dark sedan. Complainant did not believe any property was taken, and there was no apparent forced entry.

• At 1:26 p.m., Monday, Dec. 4, a Geronimo Road complainant called KCSO Teleserve Unit to report a burglary on his property. Complainant advised sometime between Wednesday, Nov. 30, and Dec. 4, an unknown suspect stole a package off her front porch containing a $900 Gaston Glock knife. Complainant advised she was wondering where her package was so she called UPS, and they said they delivered it — but she said she never saw it. Complainant advised she went home on her lunch break and checked her security cameras, seeing an unknown suspect taking the package off her porch. She did not have a description of the suspect because, complainant said, she only got a brief look at him before she had to leave.

• At 10:55 a.m., Dec. 4, a complainant called KCSO Teleserve

Unit in reference to a theft at 10820 Parkside Drive. Complainant advised he had been staying in the ICU waiting room at Turkey Creek Medical Center with family members. Complainant advised he went to sleep around 11 p.m., Sunday night, Dec. 3, and woke up around 6 a.m. the next morning to find his cell phone and charger had been stolen. Complainant advised a suspicious male had been in the same area and hospital security had video/photos of the suspect. Estimated value of loss was $850.

• At 2:08 p.m., Dec. 3, a complainant called KCSO Teleserve Unit to report an incident at a Peterson Road residence. Complainant advised sometime between midnight and just before making the call, the suspect, her friend, broke the windshield wiper switch in her car. She advised the suspect was sitting in her car while she was inside the residence and when she came back out, she saw the suspect had broken her windshield wiper switch and left on foot. Estimated value of damage was listed at $100.

• At 2:23 p.m., Saturday, Dec. 2, an East Fox Den Drive complainant called KCSO Teleserve Unit to report his 2014 Jeep Cherokee had been broken into and his wallet and $500 in cash stolen. Unknown suspect(s) gained entrance through the unlocked vehicle doors.

Kris Ray, a Town of Farragut employee in the Public Works department, picked up Santa letters last week from the official mailbox, located at Founder's Park at Campbell Station along Campbell Station Road. Repeal fee on this fee. Knox County loses $525,000 and the Town of Farragut loses $140,000 a year" because of the fee.

"Total sales tax for Farragut [for 2016-17 fiscal year] is $12,165,032. That number is less the administrative fee, which at 1.125 percent is $136,856.61," stated a press release from David Smoak, Town of Farragut administrator.

"The Town gets half of that total sales tax [minus the fee], which is $6,082,516. The other half goes to Knox County Schools," Smoak further stated.

"So it would be more accurate to say that, if the fee was discontinued, the Town and Knox County Schools would gain $136,856.61."

Zachary "is going to carry the bill into the [state] House of Representatives, and I'm sure [state] Sen. [Richard] Briggs [R-District 7 including Farragut] is going to do the same in the Senate," Schoonmaker said about the upcoming General Assembly session. "[Briggs] supported us last year on this."

"Last year it failed just because it was a Knox County application," Zachary said. "When you look at it as a statewide application, the counties and the municipalities are paying $30 million a year to simply get their tax dollars back that we submit to the state — and that's a problem.

"Commissioner Schoonmaker has done a fantastic job of creating an awareness among the county commissioners statewide," he added. "And it's our job to do that with legislators, to let people know that we've reached a point now where [it is unlike] back in the '80s, where [the fee] was feasible because there was more overhead involved.

"Now the [fee] process is so electronic, the overhead and the requirements are not there. So you're got $30 million in county and municipality dollars staying with the state as a fee."

In terms of a possible legislative compromise, Zachary said, "Possibly looking at the [fee elimination] as a phase-out as we did with Hall Income Tax.

"We want to do all we can to alleviate some of the budget challenges with the municipalities and the counties," he added.

Kobus opens BK Lash & Skin Boutique in T-Creek

Beverly Kobus

tcheek@farragutpress.com

When Beverly Kobus had a lash lifting, she fell in love with the process so much she went into business for herself.

A licensed esthetician and master lash stylist, Kobus opened BK Lash & Skin Boutique in Sola Salon Studios in early October.

Farragut West Knox Chamber of Commerce officially will welcome BK Lash & Skin Boutique to the Farragut area with a ribbon cutting at 10:30 a.m., Tuesday, Dec. 19, at 11324 Parkside Drive, Turkey Creek.

The business offers lash lifts, facials, specials on facials for teens, microderm abrasions, chemical peels, dermaplaning and lash and brow tinting.

Originally from Oklahoma, Kobus and her family lived in Denver, where she spent almost 30 years in the high-tech industry as a project manager. Then the organization for which she worked outsourced her division to India, which meant she and other staff in her Colorado division were laid off.

"And, my husband said, 'Congratulations. You can retire,'" Kobus said and laughed.

However, she added, "I'm just one that likes to be busy, and I love people. I've done a lot of volunteering my whole life — PTA president, community foundation, planning commissioner and things like that. I love being there helping people who are less fortunate."

When she had her own lashes done, Kobus said she fell in love with the industry and decided to become an esthetician. She initially went to school in 2015 to get her medical esthetician credentials, which included microdermabrasion, chemical peels and dermaplaning.

"Then, I went a step further," Kobus said. "I have a lot of friends who have gotten cancer. Their skin is so compromised, and I wanted to be able to help them."

To do that, she furthered her education by earning her oncology skincare certification in 2015. Kobus then went back to school and earned her lash extension certification in 2016.

While still in Oklahoma, she saw an availability with Sola Salon Studios online.

"I wanted to own my own business and have my own space, but I didn't have the money for real estate," Kobus said. "Sola is a phenomenal concept. [The other salon owners and I] can work together to network."

The move to Farragut also offered Kobus and her family another benefit.

"My husband and I have four kids and we wanted a slower-paced life," she said, adding Farragut provided that lifestyle. After arriving in Farragut, she said, "We fell in love with the community."

Kevin and Ricki Human have not been in business long, but their efforts already are making a difference in the community.

The couple, owners of Ricki's Pet Depot in the Village Green shopping center, have helped facilitate the adoption of more than 70 cats since opening earlier this year.

They have partnered with Loudon County Animal Shelter to find homes for felines, and have upwards of a dozen of the animals at the front of the shop at any given time.

"We are hoping to break [the] 100 [mark] by the end of the year," said Kevin Human, whose friendship with April Kennedy of Loudon County Animal

When to begin drawing Social Security?

Question: I am 65 years old, married and want to retire next year. I'm trying to decide if I should take my Social Security next year or wait until I'm 70 and live on my investments until then. How do I decide?

Answer: The time between retirement and age

70 is the sweet spot for retirement tax planning. One strategy is to delay SS until age 70 (thus growing 8 percent/year) and live on your 401k dollars. This assumes you'll be in a lower tax bracket before age 70. Because there are several factors to weigh, this is a part of retirement planning that needs professional guidance.

Question: My husband has always been the financial person in our house. He has recently been diagnosed Business Spotlight...

First Choice Automotive

Volunteer Rides and First Choice Automotive teamed up to donate the independence and freedom a reliable automobile provides. In 2016, Jeff Mynatt of Byrd's Automotive founded Volunteer Rides as a way to provide vehicles to those who need them the most.

Volunteer Rides works hand in hand with Knox Area Rescue Ministry's Serenity long-term addiction recovery program, to select the recipients of the vehicles. Local body shops, repair shops, insurance companies and parts suppliers all donate their labor, supplies, and services to restore the vehicles to roadworthy condition.

The recipient of the most recent Volunteer Ride was Rachel Giannaris from Knoxville, who plans to use the vehicle to get herself to and from her full time job. Giannaris has been in the Serenity program for two years and is on the final leg of the program. "Tears and excitement" are how Rachel described her reaction when she got word last week that she would be receiving the van. The tears were flowing again for Rachel as she was handed the keys to her Honda Odyssey, which Angie and Paul Makres donated to Volunteer Rides. First Choice Automotive held a reception on Tuesday to celebrate Rachel receiving her van. The locally owned and operated repair company provided all of the labor and some of the parts with Napa and Carroll Tire Company providing the rest.

First Choice Automotive has three convenient locations to handle all of your repair and maintenance needs. Their Farragut shop is located at 11926 Kingston Pike and they also have locations in Solway and Northshore. More information about Volunteer Rides can be found on their Facebook page.

After finishing her training in lash extensions, she discovered lash lifting.
"I worked with Elleebana One Shot Lash Lifting," she said.
"Back in the day years ago, [lash lifting] was called 'lash perming,'" Kobus added. "[Lash perming] was taking perms for your hair and putting it on your lashes. It became a service that was no longer done because it was causing so many issues."

But, she said lash perming was a popular service, so Elleebana founders, Otto and Zoe Mitter of Australia, came up with a new, healthier concept.
"[Otto Mitter] wanted to bring something that was healthy and natural for your lashes," Kobus said. "So he started working with a chemist and came up with [the product] Elleebana, which means 'peace and tranquility.' He worked with a company, Belmacil Tint, and that's lash and brow tint product."
"[The Mitters] worked with [Belmacil] for 10 years to make money off the adoptions. Our hope is that the adopters will shop with us."

They also work with Loudon County Friends of Animals Group, which fosters animals previously in "kill" shelters.
For more information, call 865-392-1151.

sure [Elleebana and Belmacil Tint] would not interfere with each other, and you would get a beautiful, gorgeous lash lift along with a tint that would stay. You no longer would have to get lash extensions," she added.
Kobus works as a master stylist with Elleebana and Belmacil and is an Elleebana trainer.
BK Lash & Skin Boutique typically is open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Tuesdays through Saturdays, and has evening hours by appointment only. To book an appointment, visit bklash.com or call 865-257-9468.

with a form of dementia, and I don't know what to do next.
Answer: The next step is to get your finances organized using an online tool like Everplans or a hard copy binder. You'll know what assets and insurance you have, and can make a plan to pay for his care. You'll also need a financial power of attorney that allows you to manage his financial affairs. And just as importantly, make sure you have a plan for yourself in case your assets are drained paying for his care.
Question: My parents paid for a long-term care policy and never used it. I know I should be thinking about one for myself, but it's hard to pay that premium never knowing if I'll even use it.

Answer: I hear you. But yet health costs not covered by Medicare are the biggest unknown expense we face in retirement.
Consider an asset-based LTC policy, where you fund it as an investment and get a multiplied amount of your investment as tax-free LTC benefits if you do need care, and a tax-free death benefit for your heirs if you don't.
It solves the "use it or lose it" problem of traditional LTC insurance.

Eun's instructors earn worldwide recognition

editor@farragutpress.com

What goes around — the privilege to train under a grand master martial artist who is quite hands-on — comes around in the form of world recognition for three instructors under Grand Master Seong J. Eun's leadership.

"It's not very often that instructors such as ourselves have a grand master to learn under," said Michael McKeehan, a taekwondo fourth-degree black belt who, at 68, joined two fellow instructors at Eun's Martial Arts Center in Farragut to earn a Letter of Appreciation from World Taekwondo Headquarters, Kukkiwon, in Seoul, South Korea.

Owen Hale, a third-degree black belt at age 68, and Jeffrey Galler, a third-degree black belt at age 60, also were honored during a brief ceremony at the center in Aspen Square Saturday morning, Dec. 2.

Eun presented each instructor a Letter of Appreciation, which read, "In recognition of your outstanding contribution and dedicated service to the development of Taekwondo and its culture," signed by Oh Hyun Deuk, president of the Kukkiwon.

"This community doesn't realize that there are very few, if any, grand masters that are actually instructors," McKeehan said.

2015 FHS grad aims for prestigious Frontier Days rodeo next summer

Lenoir City may not be the western frontier, but right now for Carson Farmer it's the next best thing.

The 2015 Farragut High School graduate practices daily on the family's pastureland, honing the rodeo roping skills he hopes will lead him to compete at Frontier Days in Cheyenne, Wyoming, next summer.

"That is the granddaddy of them all," he said of the competition. "Cheyenne would be a dream come true, just to ride [in that arena]."

"I don't care if I rope a single cow, it would just be an honor to be there."

The goal is more than achievable. After three years on the amateur rodeo circuit, he is finally pursuing the next level of the sport, and recently received his "pro card."

"You have to be 18 to get it," he said. "And it is only a permit until you win $1,000, then it becomes your card."

Farmer estimated if he just places at two upcoming rodeos, he will be able to qualify. He participated in three pro rodeos earlier this year, and won his first competitive saddle in Franklin.

Step by step, he is following what he hopes will be a life-long career path.

Poinsettias, mistletoe a threat to your pet

Q: I hear so many different things about the dangers of pets eating poinsettias and mistletoe at Christmas.

So tell me, are they really poisonous or not? L.S., Farragut will often resolve without treatment, with a couple of exceptions.

If large amounts of mistletoe are eaten, it can cause cardiac problems, specifically bradycardia (low heart rate) and/or hypotension (low blood pressure).

Additionally, if pets are elderly, fragile and/or have pre-existing medical conditions, the vomiting could result in possible dehydration and necessitate hospitalization.

Take care during the holidays to protect your pets from potential hazards.

Farmer

"It is the most addictive thing in the world," Farmer said.

He said realizing there was money to be made in the sport was just icing on the cake.

"I have always been competitive," Farmer said. "My cousin has always roped, and one year he made $36,000 about 20 years ago.

"That really got my interest, to know you could do that for a living."

Farmer took up riding as a sophomore, after becoming "burned out" following eight years of football play.

"My dad told me to find another sport, or to get a job," he said.

His sights then turned to horses. The animals and the rodeo sport was already familiar to him, as his uncle, Ed Farmer, has long been on the pro rodeo circuit as a steer roper.

Farmer's father, Joel, who also ropes and rides, insisted Carson take care of a horse before buying him one of his own.

The family then lived off Union Road, and Carson found a mildly neglected local horse that he began to visit and groom.

"My dad told me it would be a year before I got my own horse, but it was probably just six or seven months before I got one," he said.

Ed Farmer, who lives in Georgia, found Carson's first horse, and the FHS alumnus said he spent every Saturday, driving to his uncle's home to train.

Of all the events in competitive rodeo — including barrel racing, saddle and bareback bronco riding and bull riding — Farmer's choice has always been calf roping and team roping.

He said the sport is not hard, but there is a certain strategy and requires a lot of practice time.

His family, which also includes his mother, Angela, supported Carson's passion so much that they moved to an expansive property in Lenoir City four years ago so he could train regularly and freely. Farmer estimates he ropes at least 200 times a day, using either real calves or a "dummy" calf he has on site.

Farmer primarily rides 13-year-old "Yeller," a horse he has had for three years that he "wouldn't give up" even though he has had several offers.

He and his father practice and ride together, and sometimes compete in team roping events. Earlier this year, they came in 10th out of 352 teams.

Farmer hopes to give professional rodeo a real chance after he completes his sociology course at Pellissippi State Community College. "I would at least like to find a job in the western industry," he said.

"To be able to compete is the most fun thing," Farmer added. "And to win money, doing something you love, there is really nothing like it."

“So, anytime I get to come back to East Tennessee is a good thing,” he said in a phone interview.

Davis was called to his current position, as executive director for the Tennessee Baptist Missions Board near Nashville, in 2010.

The pastor plans to continue working both jobs, and said he plans to drive each week from Nolensville, which is near Nashville, to Farragut on Saturdays, then returning late Sunday or Monday.

Davis said he had suggested several names to First Baptist Concord’s pastor search committee, and “was humbly surprised when they asked me to consider it,” he said.

He said he was not seeking the position himself, but, “I prayed long and hard about it, and I feel like this is a door the Lord has opened.”

Davis and his wife, Jeanne, have two married daughters, Wendy and Beth, and four grandchildren.

“It’s a great honor. I had no idea. It was a great surprise,” Hale said. “What we do here we do for the enjoyment of it. To be honored this way is very pleasing.”

Eun’s students, around 290, range in age from 3 to 84. “It’s a wonderful family here,” Galler said.

“They brought me in as an outsider,” added Galler, one of Eun’s 16 instructors. “I’ve learned a lot from them. And I’m really fortunate to be able to work with all the kids and their families.”

“I’m very proud. They have been training more than 10 years. They always volunteer for our events — testing and demonstrations — and many times they contribute with community service,” Eun said. “And they also are good influences to little kids.”

Jenni Henderson, an instructor at the center who is a second-degree black belt, also participated in the ceremony, which was held in front of several elementary-age students and their parents following a training session.

TWO RIVERS CHURCH BIRTHDAY PARTY for JESUS

Because Christmas would not even be celebrated without our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, Two Rivers Church ensured Christ was “the reason for the season” at its family-centric “Birthday Party for Jesus.”

Crafts and snacks began the celebration, which led into caroling and listening to the story of Jesus’ birth, and culminated in singing “Happy Birthday,” sharing cupcakes and fun with a portable petting zoo.

Angie Hooie, the church’s children’s director, said the event not only promoted the real meaning of Christmas, but also was an opportunity for children and their parents to spend time together.

Lady Ads snap streak

With fast start, juniors lead FHS past Bearden

A fast start helped the Farragut High School girls basketball team snap a lengthy losing streak to its longtime rival.

The Lady Admirals darted out to a big lead, but had to hang on to outlast Bearden 61-58 before a spirited crowd in FHS's Lynn E. Sexton Gymnasium Friday night, Dec. 8.

Farragut opened a 13-3 advantage when junior Brooke Christian nailed a 3-pointer midway into the opening period. Sydney Chapman, another junior, had an old-fashioned three-point play a short time later to give FHS a 19-5 lead.

Christian, Chapman and Morgan Carbaugh are juniors and starters for Farragut (5-3 overall, 3-1 in District 4-AAA after the win) — but none of them had ever beaten Bearden until Friday night.

"I've never beaten them and this is just a great feeling," said Carbaugh, who scored a game-high 24 points (including 17 in the second half) and grabbed 12 rebounds.

FMS hoops teams enjoy blowout wins at Halls

KEN LAY

KNOXVILLE — Farragut Middle School's Lady Admirals turned up the defensive pressure early, cruising to a 40-13 Knox County Middle School Basketball Conference victory over the Halls Lady Demons at HMS Friday afternoon, Dec. 8.

"I thought our defense came out early and really set the tone with its pressure," FMS girls head coach Susan Davidson said.

Meanwhile, a huge second-quarter run spelled victory for Farragut Middle School boys at Halls, 57-31. (More on boys later in story).

The Lady Admirals (10-1 overall, 5-1 in conference play starting the week), were led by Ashlynn Sheridan's 10 points. Ace Strickland, the county's Most Valuable Player last season, scored eight points and grabbed eight rebounds. Haley Prince pulled down six rebounds. Ella McFerran scored four points and made six steals. Keeliegh Rogers finished the game with seven steals.

While the Halls girls dropped to 1-7, 1-5, the HMS boys fell to 0-8.

Farragut's boys (5-5, 3-3 after the win) made eight 3-pointers and had three players post double figures in scoring. Dillon Atwell led all scorers with 14 points. Isaiah Smith added 13 and Mason Collins finished with 11.

"It was a great day for us," FMS boys head coach Randy Swartzentruber said. "Our first group came in here and played really well in this environment."

Bearden High School's boys basketball team kept its perfect record intact Friday night, Dec. 8. But Bulldogs head coach Jeremy Parrott was less than pleased.

"The fact that we're finding ways to win pleases me, but we've still got a long way to go," Parrott said after Bearden used a huge fourth quarter to pull away and earn a 76-53 District 4-AAA victory over rival Farragut before a near capacity crowd in FHS's Lynn E. Sexton Gymnasium. "This is a great bunch of kids but we've got to start things better."

"Somewhere down the line, somebody's going to make us pay for these lackadaisical starts. When our backs are up against the wall, we play better for some reason," he added.

Bearden (12-0 overall, 4-0 in the district after winning) was led by guard Quez Glover with a game-high 26 points. Trent Stephney added 16 for Bearden. Shamarcus Brown had 11. Pember scored seven. Roman Robinson and Justin Ketterl finished with six each.

Parrott

The Bulldogs led throughout the game but never created much separation until the fourth quarter.

The Admirals (3-6, 1-3 after the loss) pulled to within 44-42 when Caleb Thompson hit a pair of free throws midway through the third stanza.

But the Bulldogs responded with a 10-4 run to take a 54-46 lead heading into the fourth quarter.

"Our coach talked about intensity at halftime and we came out and we stepped it up," Brown said. "We've got to start out playing better defensively."

"I thought we played really well for about 36 minutes," Admirals head coach Jon Higgins said. "We played well for three quarters. But two or three times [throughout the game] we lost our minds a little bit."

"We turned the ball over and we made decisions that we don't usually make," he added.

Thompson led the Ads in scoring with 12. Chris Dalton added 11. Ethan Sherrill scored 10 and Tre Moreno had nine.

each scored 17 points each for the Lady Bulldogs (7-4, 1-3 after the loss). Annaka Hall added 10. "Farragut came out of the get-go and they wanted it really bad from the start of the game. ... They were more passionate, they played with greater effort," Bearden head coach Justin Underwood said. "... Hats off to Carbaugh, she had a fantastic game."
